"DataPoints informs our strategies as it gives us a better global perspective of how the university is perceived than we had previously. For both the recruitment of YLZLHYJO Z[HH HUK a better understanding of the international graduate student world, it is useful for us to learn how people outside the US actually perceive who we are and what we are strong in."

"We have noticed increased conversation among colleagues, and a deeper understanding about how important the global picture is. I think the more accessible this type of information is, and the more we share it internally, the more it prompts questions – and that is a sign of a healthy organisation."

"It gives me the actual values for Northwestern versus our peers, so it helps you see really ZWLJPÄJ PUMVYTH[PVU ¶ SPRL ^OH[their doctorates-awarded-to- HJHKLTPJZ[HH YH[PV PZ HUK OV^ it compares with ours. More importantly, it allows you to see how tightly bunched we may be with certain peers on certain measures – that is critical with any kind of assessment: what is the clustering that is occurring, and how far away is the next institution behind you, and the next one ahead? DataPoints provides that. The number-one advantage is time. The information is there, it is available. You can pull it up in a meeting and show in a chart where Northwestern stands across its peer group."
